IBS Software Bags 'Aviation IT Provider of the Year' Award

Trivandrum: 13 March, 2017: IBS Software has won the prestigious 'Information Technology Provider of the Year for the Airline Industry' award instituted by Transport News International (TNI), the widely read UK based monthly journal published by AI Global Media Ltd. TNI specializes in the global transport industry with features on the deals, appointments, research, news and other developments. Industry experts in their field, government and think-tanks from around the world shed light on the issues that matter, with special sections on rail, roads, logistics, shipping and aviation in every issue of the publication. TNI has been in existence for seven years and has a current readership of around 59,000 world-wide.

The 2017 Air Transport Awards, instituted by TNI, recognizes companies for their hard work, innovation and accomplishments. The magazines dedicated research team compiles a dossier on each nominee, utilizing information supplied by the nominated company as well as material gleaned from the internet or provided by their network of industry contacts. This dossier is then provided to the judging panel, who award only those firms they believe are truly deserving of recognition. Of the seven nominees in the category for Aviation IT Provider of the Year, IBS Software has been chosen by the judging panel comprising of the three directors of AI Global Media, as well as the editorial board of Transport News.

"This is yet another recognition for IBS from an industry expert. We are extremely proud of this accolade and believe it is a true endorsement of our pursuit to deliver cutting edge technology solutions to the air transportation industry world-wide. We will continue to invest significantly in our technology offerings to gain more traction in the market and to ensure we stay ahead of competition at all times" said Bratati Ghosh, Chief Marketing Officer, IBS Software.
